

NBA

February 5, 1981

Dear Colleague:

Region III of The National Bar Association will be conducting a one day conference on March 7, 1981 at Temple University Law School in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The theme of the conference is "The Challenge of the 80's: Coping With The New Wave of Conservatism in America."

Our plan is to have registration from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and a general discussion of current trends led by the officers of the NBA from 9:30 a.m. until noon. At noon lunch will be served on site where a guest speaker will be featured. At 2:00 p.m. several group discussions will be held covering the following topics:

- The New Code of Professional Responsibility and Other Barriers to Practicing Law
- The Importance of Establishing and Maintaining Black Law Firms
- The Black Lawyers' Role in Local Government
- Prison Research Project (Conducted Recently in Philadelphia)

Each of these discussions will be led by individuals who have expertise in these areas. What we hope to accomplish is the following: A meaningful exchange of ideas which can be transformed into a formal position on each of the discussion areas. At the end of the day we hope to come back together as one unit to report the conclusions of each group.

As noted, we have invited the officers of The National Bar Association (including its Board of Governors), in addition to the black judiciary in our region who will be honored at a cocktail reception immediately following the conference.

Your input and therefore your attendance is crucial in order to make this conference successful. We very much look forward to seeing you on March 7, 1981.

Very truly yours,

Timothy A. Crawford, Jr.
Regional Director and

Paulette Brown-Robinson
Deputy Regional Director
